Bowen, Hanes & Company, Inc. is an investment adviser registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”). Investment advisory services and fees are different than the services and fees provided by a broker-dealer, and it is important for you to understand the differences. There are free and simple tools available allowing you to research firms and financial professionals at Investor.gov/CRS, which also provides educational materials about broker-dealers, investment advisers, and investing in general.

Incorporated

What investment services and advice can you provide me?

We provide investment advisory services and portfolio management to high-net-worth investors, trusts, foundations, government and corporate pension plans, and other institutions. We monitor your account investments on an ongoing basis as part of our standard services and will confer with you via phone, email and/or meetings to discuss your investments and any changes to your financial situation. Our advisory services are offered on a discretionary basis. Under a discretionary management agreement, we have the authority to execute investment decisions based on your financial goals, objectives and risk tolerance. Portfolios are primarily invested in common stocks and fixed income securities, although we may invest in other types of securities if we believe it is appropriate to your circumstance. Our minimum account size is $3,000,000, although we may waive this minimum at our discretion.

What fees will I pay?

Fees for managing your account are charged at the beginning of each calendar quarter based on the market value of the assets in your account on the last day of the previous quarter. Our standard fee schedule is found in our Disclosure Brochure. Fees are subject to negotiation. Your fee may vary from the standard schedules to reflect circumstances that apply to your specific account. The specific fee schedule and terms that apply to your account are stated in your investment management agreement.

The types of fees we receive may create a conflict of interest. Asset-based fees incentivize us to encourage you to add more assets to your account. You will also incur other fees directly or indirectly. These may include, but are not limited to, custodian fees, account maintenance fees, mutual fund expenses, transaction costs, trade-away fees, account transfer fees, wire transfer fees, interest, and taxes. You will pay these costs whether you make or lose money on your investments. Fees and costs will reduce any amount of money you make on your investments over time. Please make sure you understand what fees and costs you are paying.

What are your legal obligations to me when acting as my investment adviser? How else does your firm make money and what conflicts of interest do you have?

When we act as your investment adviser, we have to act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. At the same time, the way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask us about these conflicts because they affect the investment advice we provide you. Examples could include recommending that you transfer an account into an account managed by us, or recommending that your assets remain in your account rather than satisfying a debt obligation.

We receive services from the custodian we recommend that include investment-related research, quotes and market data; technology that allows us to service your account including trading and access to your account data; compliance and/or practice management-related publications; free or discounted conferences, meetings and other educational and/or social events; marketing support; and/or other products and services that assist us in operating our business. The economic benefit we receive creates a conflict of interest and may influence our choice of custodian for custody and brokerage services.
